You can benefit from saving regularly

Unit cost averaging

Markets have their peaks and troughs, but with unit cost averaging, you don't have to worry about trying to time the market. The amount you invest buys more fund units when the price is low and fewer units when the price is high, meaning you get an average unit cost over time. This helps you gain better overall growth and returns.

Compounded growth

Compound growth can significantly boost your investment returns over the long term, as it makes your money grow at a faster rate. Essentially, it's growth on growth. If you start saving today, you'll be amazed by how much you'll save over time, because the more time you have, the more you can benefit from the power of compounded returns.

You can minimise the effect of charges

When you stay committed to saving, you are rewarded in more ways than one. By holding your policy to maturity, not only can you achieve your long-term goals, you can also benefit from reducing the effect of your policy charges. To maximise the growth of your regular savings, the charges are spread over the term of your policy and taken on a monthly basis.

The figures in the table below represent the minimum rates of growth needed to offset the policy charges.
